THE RISE OF EUROPEAN MUSIC, 1380–1500

REINHARD STROHM
CONTENTS

- List of illustrations .................................................. page x
- List of tables .......................................................... xi
- Preface ........................................................................... xiii

Introduction .................................................................. 1

Part I  The age of the Great Schism (1378–1417) .......... 11

Introduction ................................................................ 13

1 The central tradition ...................................................... 23
   - Trends in sacred music ................................................. 23
   - Aesthetic ambitions of the Ars subtilior ......................... 35
   - The pride of the isorhythmic motet ................................. 39
   - Writing and performing secular music .............................. 43
   - The ballade of the faithful Medea .................................. 46
   - Composers and patrons ............................................... 53

2 The lateral traditions ...................................................... 62
   - Paris and the Low Countries ......................................... 63
   - England .................................................................... 75
   - Italy ......................................................................... 84

3 The Council of Constance ............................................... 106
   - A new publicity of music ................................................ 106
   - Sacred ceremonies ....................................................... 111
   - A 'conciliar repertory' ................................................... 115
   - Secular song and its transformations ............................... 119
Part II  The age of Dufay and Dunstable  125

Introduction  127

1  North and south  136
   The genesis of the new style on the Continent  136
   Dufay and his colleagues in Italy (1420–c.1436)  153
   The chanson and Binchois  181

2  West and east  197
   Anglo-continental relations and the Old Hall Manuscript  197
   Insular practices  206
   From the Old Hall Manuscript to the Caput Mass  211
   A sweep through Europe  238

Part III  The common traditions  267

1  Music in the life of the institutions  269
   The Church and the world  269
   Locations for music in the church: choir, nave and chapel  270
   Chapel music and its performance  273
   Choir music and chapel music compared  281
   The functions of chapel music, and Dufay’s last works  283
   Schools and the Kantorei  287
   The universities  291
   Singing in public  294
   Music in monastic life  296
   Music and the secular authorities  300
   Various public uses of music  302
   The European scene  307
   Various private uses of music  313

2  Monophonic song, simple polyphony and instrumental music  321
   Developments of liturgical chant  321
   The Latin canto and related forms  327
   Simple polyphony  333
   European practices of vernacular song  339
   Aspects of transmission, performance and notation  348
   Instrumental ensemble music  357
   Keyboard music  367
Contents

Part IV  Europe after 1450: diversity and participation

1 Britain: homegrown glories

- Musical institutions
- The sacred repertory at home
- Secular polyphony
- Antiphon settings
- Mass settings

2 France and the Low Countries: the invention of the masterwork

- The enterprising 1450s
- Mass and motet to c.1465
- Liturgical and devotional music: some sacred institutions
- Secular song
- Mass and motet from c.1465 to c.1480
- Regis and Obrecht

3 Central Europe: masters and apprentices

- Organists and song collectors
- Chapels, schools and their music books
- The musical patronage of the Habsburgs
- Some particular developments of central Europe

4 Italy and Spain: the encounter of music and Renaissance

- The Italian Quattrocento and the music historians
- Courtly fashions: education and humanism
- The improvvisatori; dance music
- Foreign secular music
- Native secular music in Italy and Spain
- Music in the cathedrals and cities; music theory
- Sacred polyphony in the courtly sphere
- Music by Josquin and his competitors in Milan and Ferrara
- Faces of musical humanism

- List of music manuscripts
- Bibliography
- Index